CAMBRIDGE AND ENGLAND FAVOURITES

London Staging Two Sport Classics.

570,000 AGGREGATE EXPECTED TO WITNESS EVENTS

London, To-day.

Two immensely popular sporting events will take place in London this afternoon—the University Boat Race and the International Rugby match between England and Scotland for the Calcutta Cup.

The Thames banks and bridges will hold the usual vast crowd of approximately 500,000, many of whom will wait long hours for the few seconds' thrill of seeing the rival crews finish by.

A still larger audience in all parts of the world will listen to the description of the race broadcast from a launch following the boats along the 4½ miles course. Although Oxford are the heavier of two exceptionally heavy crews, the Cambridge eight have the advantage of greater experience, and although a close race is anticipated, they are generally expected to add another victory to the long list of post-war Cambridge successes.

70,000 CROWD EXPECTED

The England and Scotland Rugby match in the only international to be played at Twickenham this season.

THE LAWN TENNIS AMATEUR

Scathing Denunciation In I.L.T.C. Report.

AMERICA FAVOURS OPEN TOURNAMENT

Paris, To-day.

A scathing denunciation of amateurism, in tennis as practised to-day, and warnings against the lure of professionalism, is contained in the report of the International Lawn Tennis Committee appointed to revise the definition of an amateur.

It was decided that the National Associations should give time to study the report, which will be finally discussed in London on July 30.

In the course of the discussion, Great Britain and France opposed open tournaments, while the United States favoured them.—Reuter.

Arriving early this morning from Sweden, the 22 Norwegians, which were sent last Tuesday during the visit from Shanghai, to Shanghai, were placed under quarantine. A case of small-pox being discovered on board. The case in question was a child of five months old of Shanghai parentage.

REICHSBANK LOSSES

SENSATIONAL STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT

45,000,000 Marks Worth Of Gold In Week.

RESTRICTING IMPORTS OF RAW MATERIALS

Berlin, To-day.

A sensational statement that the Reichsbank, during the past week, had lost 45,000,000 marks worth of gold so that the actual cover of the Bank's note circulation now amounted to only eight per cent, was made by Dr. Schacht, President of the Reichsbank, addressing the American Chamber of Commerce here, yesterday.

He said that at this rate it would be absolutely necessary to restrict the imports of raw materials.

Since December 31, he added, the Reichsbank had lost 122,000,000 marks in gold and foreign currencies.—Reuter.

The previous return of the Reichsbank for the week ended March 7 showed goldstocks totalling 820,000,000 marks, representing cover of 9.4 per cent.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT TAKING VACATION.

NO WAR DEBTS MESSAGE.

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received March 16, 3.41 p.m.)

Washington, To-day.

It is reliably learned that President Roosevelt has privately informed the Congressional leaders that a war debts message will not be forthcoming this session. Observers are of the opinion that the President is anxious to avoid a protracted session and in most quarters it is predicted that Congress will be ready to adjourn after the middle of May.

President Roosevelt plans to board Mr. Astor's yacht, "Nourmah", at Miami, Florida, on March 27, for a brief fishing vacation.—United Press, per S.C. Gold Bar Co.

The House of Representatives, by a margin of a single vote, have passed a resolution insisting on a substantial reduction of the figure of U.S.$118,000,000 approved by the Senate for veterans' allowances, for disability payments and pensions, as compared with U.S.$300,000,000 allotted by the Bill originally passed by the House. The Committee of both Houses will work out a compromise.

CAR WORKERS' ULTIMATUM TO U. S. GOVERNMENT

General Johnson Seeks Agreement With Industry Leaders

Washington, To-day.

United States motor-car workers have decided to give the Government four days grace before striking against "company union."

Meanwhile, General Hugh Johnson, the National Recovery Administrator, will seek an agreement with the leaders of industry.—Reuter.

MUSSOLINI'S ENEMIES

Four Anti-Fascists Up For Trial.

BOMB EXPLOSION AT ST. PETER'S

Rome, To-day.

Four anti-Fascists, accused of plotting against the life of the Italian Premier, Signor Mussolini, by exploding a bomb at St. Peter's, in Rome, during the celebration of Mass, on June 26, 1932, appeared yesterday before the Special Tribunal for the Defence of the State.

Armed militia and Blackshirts guarded the court. Two of the accused, Claudio Cianca and Renato Cianca, declared that the explosion of the bomb was merely an anti-Fascist demonstration, and was not intended to cause damage.

The explosion and the subsequent proposal to kill Mussolini by means of a poison gas bomb placed in the Chamber of Deputies, when Il Duce was attending the debate, were both arranged by Leonardo Bucciglioni and Renato Cianca's brother, Alberto, during visits to Paris. The penalty for conspiracy against the life of Il Duce is death.—Reuter.

A Danubian Agreement was reached after a three-hour meeting between the Italian Premier, Signor Mussolini, the Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Dollfuss, and the Hungarian Premier, General Gombos, yesterday evening and will be signed to-day.

The signing will be followed by a public declaration.

The Agreement, which is both political and economic, is understood to affirm the intention of the signatories to collaborate for the restoration of the Danubian States.

It also, it is understood, invites other nations to adhere and re-affirms that the three States are not forming an exclusive bloc.

Italy, it is understood, will give preference to Hungarian grain and certain industrial products, and to timber from Austria, while Austria and Hungary will give preference to certain Italian exports, mainly manufactures.

LINDBERGH CONDEMNS AIR U.S. MAIL BILL

Limiting Rights Of Private Companies.

TRIAL DEMANDED

Army Operator Proved Not So Efficient

Washington, To-day.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh yesterday told the Senate Committee that he considered as unjust the section of the New United States Air Mail Bill limiting the right of private companies to bid for new contracts.

He declared that private contracts should not be cancelled without a trial.

He added that the Army operators had not been so efficient as the private concerns in running the air mail services.

Col. Lindbergh admitted that he had received U.S.$4,000 up to March 1 from the Transcontinental and Western Airways, who had lost their contract, and U.S.$10,000 annually from Pan American Airways.

He had not, however, participated in the conference which had led to the placing of contracts, and his connection with aviation was mainly technical.—Reuter.

INSULL'S ARREST DENIED

Greek Premier In Interview.

ROMANIAN VISA OBTAINED

Athens, To-day.

The rumor that the American financier, Mr. Samuel Insull, was under arrest about the "Mistake" is emphatically denied by the Greek Premier, Mr. Tzannetakis.

Mr. Tzannetakis said that Mr. Insull's return to Athens was required because although under supervision he escaped and broke the law, growing the entry and departure of aliens.

An inquiry will be held on his return later which might lead to his arrest. Mr. Insull is reported to have been in Athens for some time.

FIESINGER'S OUTBURST

TREASURY NOT STUDIED SITUATION

Closed Not Open Mind On Silver.

SILVER LEGISLATION DATA PREDICTED

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received March 16, 4.31 p.m.)

Washington, To-day.

Commenting on Mr. Henry Morgenthau's statement Senator Wheeler said that the price of silver always influenced the price of wheat and cotton. "When a silver Bill is reported out by the House Committee, the price of wheat and commodities go up, and when Mr. Morgenthau makes a statement, the prices go down," Senator Wheeler stated.

Mr. Fiesinger, author of the Fiesinger Silver Bill, stated: "Mr. Morgenthau says his mind is open on silver, but I think it is closed. The Treasury has not studied the situation."

Representative Dies has predicted that Congress will pass silver legislation within three weeks.—United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

AMERICA TO TEST SILVER IN HOUSE.

Vote On Two Bills On Monday.

CAUSE OF MORGENTHAU'S IRRITATION

Washington, To-day.

Declaring that "we are going to test silver" in the House, Mr. Rainey, Speaker of the House of Representatives, has announced that he will permit a House vote, on March 18, on the two silver Bills approved by the House Coinage Committee on March 10.

Mr. Rainey's action apparently prompted the irritating remarks of the United States Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, who said on Thursday that legislation is unnecessary at present, and that some silver advocates are not entirely disinterested, though Mr. Morgenthau afterwards issued a statement declaring that he was not referring to members of Congress.—Reuter.

Correct Sitting

Don't Sag All Over Your Chair And Desk

Correct sitting posture applies to the girl who works in an office as well as to the woman whose activities are largely social.

If you have hours and hours of typing ahead of you, you'll get through it more quickly and certainly more easily if you put your feet directly in front of you, flat on the floor. Sit back until the base of our spine touches the back of the chair and then straighten out your spinal column, neck and head into one straight line.

Don't get too near the typewriter. Give your arms a chance to work freely.

If typing isn't in your schedule and you don't have to sit at your desk for more than half an hour at a time, go ahead and cross your legs. Just remember that it's tiring if you have to sit in one chair for hours at a stretch.

Holding a book in your lap while reading is a bad gesture. Your head can't be upright if you have to let your chin rest on your chest in order to see the print. Hold the book upward and on a comfortable level with your eyes.

And sitting down is no sign to let the muscles of your stomach sag. They should be pulled in and up just the same as they are when you are standing or walking.

AMUSING COLLARS AND CUFFS

Popular Accessories

Kid bands, shading from rose to purple and joined by silver rings, make an amusing collar, cuff and belt set for a Chinese-blue frock.

A fan-pleated jabot, attached to a plain neckline with square clips of mother-of-pearl, is another popular accessory which aids the transformation of a dress.

RIBBONS IMPORTANT

Ribbons are slated to play an important role in forthcoming hat and dress styles. Blum's aluminum corduroy satin and the staircase woven taffetas are interesting novelties.

Artificial Flowers

ARTIFICIAL flowers may be attractively arranged in a bowl half filled with sand. After placing each stem in the sand, pour hot paraffin over the sand and the flower will remain permanently in position.

FLOWERS IN SPRING FASHIONS

Pastel Posies For Berets

Flowers are blooming again in Spring fashions. Jane Blanchot's flower-trimmed sailors, held on by garland bandeaux, are meeting success.

Black berets having a huge pastel posy that eclipses one eye are unusual. Evening girdles are bedecked with carnations; orchids are also favoured.

BLOUSES ARE NEW KEYNOTE

Sweaters Like Coats Of Mail

Blouses constitute the keynote of many new costumes: coloured lace is competing with satin and lame.

Knitted silk and metal evening sweaters are appearing; silver tulle sweaters, looking like modern coats of mail, are charming novelties.

STYLE MIXTURE

Dressing For The Lunch Hour

WHAT LONDON IS WEARING

There is so great a mixture of styles in the present fashions as they are worn by day and in the evening, that it is difficult to give a clear impression of what is in vogue. Take the luncheon hour at a restaurant in London. You see such a collection of styles as to turn the head dizzy.

A girl comes in wearing a tweed tailor-made; her matching hat is shaped after the fashion of a fatigue cap and is trimmed by a gay little feather in front, set flat on the crown.

She may have flat-heeled, wide-toed shoes, and a cosy muffler of the silk in bright colours draped about the neck of her coat. Her gloves may be in peccavi and her bag and shoes may match each other in colour and kid. She is very neat and trim until you look at her hair, which is dressed so elaborately as to look quite wrong with her tweeds and shoes.

Then your eye meets that of a lovely creature in a frock of jade green woollen crepe, with steel clips to fasten the bodice at the shoulder and to catch the skirt on the left hip. Over it is put a long black coat, trimmed magnificently with astrakhan muffs about the shoulders and sleeves. She carries a huge astrakhan muff like a flat cot pillow.

BRIDGE NOTES

A DOUBLE ROBBERY.

by Ely Culbertson

It has always been a part of the smart card player's repertoire to "sneak" a necessary trick early in the play of a hand before the defending team can easily ascertain the true nature of his honour-trick holding and distribution. The following hand I saw played recently in a game at a Bridge club in New York City. The beauty of it lies in the fact that the Declarer had to steal not only one trick, but two. This sort of swindle is dangerous, but is worth attempting when failure means suffering only an extra hundred points in penalties, and success results in making a game worth over 400 points.

1—There is hardly a rebid here, but North hated to give up.

2—Fully justified. South had a maximum one-no-trump Take-out.

3—On the theory that three no-trump is almost as easy as two no-trump.

West opened the seven of diamonds, which Dummy's Queen held. South needed another diamond trick as well as a trick in hearts and one in spades to make his contract. He saw a chance if he could sneak through the adverse Aces while the adversaries still saw their greatest possibility in establishing their diamond suit; but he had unwisely put Dummy in the lead on the first trick, and could not return to his hand without giving away his possession of a solid club suit. If he led a heart from the doubleton Queen, he was reasonably sure that the Ace would win the trick, and his diamond stopper would be gone before he could realize a trick on his King of spades. So he led a spade immediately from Dummy, and when East played small, fearlessly put up the King, which of course held. He then led a low heart from the King, and West, wishing to preserve his heart entry to the diamond suit when it should be established, played small, so Dummy's Queen won this trick. A low diamond was now led from Dummy and the Knave played by South; this trick West joyously gobbled in with the Ace, and returned a diamond, establishing two tricks in that suit, for which the Ace of hearts seemed a sure entry. Dummy's King of diamonds won this trick, and five clubs were cashed, making nine tricks in all.

The East-West team, who are fairly good players, indulged in a long controversy as to which deserved the greater share of the blame.

ENGLAND EXPECTED TO WIN RUGBY

Scotland Attempting To Force Triple Tie.

SASSENACHS' BETTER BALANCED FIFTEEN

Not since the 1929-30 season have England held the International Rugby Championship by herself, but to-day's game against Scotland at Twickenham should enable her to record a 100 per cent. triumph in addition to securing the Calcutta Cup.

Rugby critics at Home are unanimous in selecting the English fifteen as the best balanced of the four competing countries.

Should Scotland, last year's unbeaten champions, overcome the Twickenham bogey to-day a triple tie between England, Scotland and Wales will ensue. Ireland have completed their fixtures, being defeated in each of her three games.

The following are the selected teams:

England—Owen Smith (St. Mary's Hospital); Booth (Headingly); Cranmer (Oxford University); Gerard (Bath); Melk (Worcester); Slow (Leicester); Gadeny (Leicester); Row (Blackheath); Gregory (Bristol); Longland (Northampton); Forrest (United Services); Dicks (Northampton); Fry (Liverpool); Kendrew (Leicester); and Weston (Northampton).

Scotland—Brown (London Scottish); Shaw (Glasgow High School); Dick (Cambridge); Lind (Dunfermline); Fyfe (Cambridge); Colter (Hillhead High School); Logan (Edinburgh Wanderers); Ritchie (Watsonians); Coddington (Kelso); Allen (Melrose); Beattie (Hawick); Stewart (Stewart College); Lambie (Glasgow High School); Waters (Selkirk); and Wetherston (Edinburgh Wanderers).

COMPETITORS in the Senior Race (Three Miles), taking the water jump at the finish of the Eton College steeplechase. A. J. Marsden, the winner, is seen jumping—(S. & G.).

200 FAIL AT WATER JUMP

Eton Steeplechase

Very fast times were made in the Eton College steeplechase this year. But the water jump, 22 feet wide, and only 30 yards from the winning post, was not cleared by any of the 200 competitors, who all received a ducking.

This jump has been cleared only twice since 1880.

Prince Waldemar, of Hesse, was among the 160 boys taking part in the junior jump.

The senior race was won by A. J. Marsden, son of a master at Eton. He ran brilliantly to win by nearly a quarter-mile, in 14 minutes 26 seconds, which almost equalled record. G. S. Brodick was second, and J. S. Windham-Wright third.

C. D. Harris St. John won the junior race, with K. Hope-Jones second, and B. Alexander third.

CHAMPIONS MUST WIN LAST GAME

Recreio "A" Provide Stern Opposition

TO-DAY'S CAER CLARK HOCKEY

The deciding game in the Caer Clark Cup competition will be played to-day when the Hong Kong Ladies' and the Recreio "A" Ladies clash at Sookunpoo, commencing at 3 p.m.

A win will give the Hong Kong Ladies the trophy for the fourth year in succession, whereas a draw will enable the St. Andrew's Ladies, the runners-up, who are only one point behind, to meet the champions in a deciding game. Defeat, however, will place the Saints ahead in the competition.

The Recreio are fielding a full team, but Miss M. Wallace, will be replaced in the champions' half-back line by Miss B. Helbling from the full-back line. Miss J. Smiley will make a welcome return at full-back.

The Caer were defeated by the odd goal in three in the first round.

The following are the teams:

H.K. Ladies—M. Bird; E. M. Gray; J. Smiley; B. Helbling; B. Pope; Mrs. M. K. Lowe; W. Mark; J. Daisie; E. Bonnar; J. Churchill and E. King.

Recreio "A"—B. D'Almeida; M. Basto; C. Osmund; M. Remedios; M. Alves; L. Silva-Netto; L. Xavier; A. Alves; C. Silva; M. Rosa and B. Remedios.

C. B. A. CHALLENGE

Saints Should Be Fully Extended

The St. Andrew's Club, who have defeated every other team in the competition, with the exception of the Hong Kong Ladies, will receive a serious challenge from the Central British Association Ladies whom they meet on the Marina ground to-day at 2.45 p.m.

The C.B.A. have made remarkable strides during the past few months, and should full extend the runners-up. Both teams will be at full strength.

The Saints won in the first round by 2 goals to 1.

St. Andrews—Mrs. R. Rose; E. Landolt; G. White; M. Churn; J. Wong; I. Woolley; F. Wong; I. Rogers; M. Wooley; I. Glittins and P. Glittins.

C.B.A. Ladies—Mrs. Webber; P. Woolley; F. Walker; B. Bryson; E. Beavis; G. MacNider; D. Hunt; M. Whitley; E. Woolley; M. Smith and F. Best.

JUNIOR TEAMS CLASH

Recreio Expected To Secure First Win

The two junior teams, both of whom are newcomers to the Caer Clark Competition, the Central British Schoolgirls and the Recreio "B," will meet for the second time at King's Park, commencing to-day at 2.15 p.m.

The Schoolgirls obtained the two points in the first encounter by an only goal, but have lost many valuable players since that date, and, with the improvement shown by the Recreio team of late, the game will probably go in favour of the Recreio.

C.B.S.—D. Moss; E. Ingram; E. Bryson; J. Hickley; E. Moly; C. Bone; E. Rousseau; L. de Chaffoy; J. Loko; M. H. Kall; and J. Kravitz.

Recreio "B"—G. Bora; O. Botelho; T. Nrochua; Y. Brito; E. Rosario; A. Almeida; O. Silva; M. Xavier; I. Botelho; C. Botelho and M. Figueiredo.

Radio Hopes Of Hat Trick Shattered

ST. ANDREW'S MAY SHATTER 100 PER. CENT. RECORD

(BY STICKS).

The Police hockey team are champions of the Mamak Hockey Tournament for this season, as the result of their win over the Royal Engineers by 2 goals to nil. Perkins and Patal scored the goals.

The Police have now to meet St. Andrew's to complete their fixtures, but as they are 4 points ahead of the next best team—the Radio Sports Club, their position is unassailable.

The Police have maintained a 100 per cent. record, and have prevented the Radio from recording the "hat trick" in a completion which is now in its third year.

DATE TO BE ANNOUNCED LATER

With the Police as definite champions of the Mamak Hockey Tournament this season, the date for the champions v Rest encounter was discussed at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Mamak Tournament last night at the St. Andrew's Church Hall.

A sub-committee, comprising Messrs. A. E. P. Guest, P. J. Barlow and Kieron Vaughan, was nominated to select the Rest team.

The date of the game will be announced shortly.

Mr. E. O. England White, who recently returned from holiday, presided at the meeting.

GREYHOUND RACING IN PANAMA

Sport Suspended By Government Decree

Greyhound racing is dead in Panama, unless there is a change in the Government that killed the so-called "sport of queens" here.

The opposition, before the revolution, charged that government officials were interested in racing. After the overthrow of the Government the dog track was closed.

Former President Ricardo Alfaro, now Minister at Washington, has been charged with having been interested in greyhound racing.

The fact that the club made nearly $200,000 annually, and that the Government received only $500, was cited as evidence.

The club carried on its business in the Supreme Court, which rendered a decision in favour of the Government.

OXFORD HOLD RECORD

Cambridge, winners of the the Boat Race for the last ten years, are firm favourites for to-day's race from Putney to Mortlake against Oxford, who have been severely handicapped by sickness.

The Dark Blues last won in 1913, by three quarters of a length. Last year they were beaten by 2 1/4 lengths after a heroic struggle against a much superior eight. They, however, hold the record for the distance—18 minutes 29 seconds in 1911. Cambridge's nearest approach to this time was 18 minutes 41 seconds in 1924.

The following are the crews:—

An attempt was made to row the race on Mar. 30, but both crews sank, and although Oxford re-embarked and completed the course the umpire decided that it was "no race."

The first race, in 1829, was rowed at Henley; in 1838-9, 1840-1-2 the course was from Westminster to Putney; in 1846, 1856, and 1863 the course was from Mortlake to Putney; all the other races have been rowed from Putney to Mortlake.

Oxford has won 40 races. Cambridge 44.

TAM ENTERS SEMI-FINAL ROUND.

Erratic And Careless Lai Beaten.

Failure to find his length at any stage of the match and a tendency to be careless was responsible for the elimination of Lai Kwong Tsun, conqueror of S.A. Kwanjahn, by Tam Yoe Fong in the quarter-finals of the Colony Lawn Tennis Singles Championship at the H.K.C.C. yesterday.

Tam, former Hanoi champion, was full value for his win, 4-6, 6-2. He showed capability, but it was his concentration on Lai's weak backhand that was responsible for his success.

Lai was definitely on form, but this is no way depreciated Tam's win, which gives him the right to meet either H.K. Lai or J. V. Lam in the semi-finals.

Carnera Greeted In Cuba

WORLD BOXING TITLE

CARNERA MAY DEFEND TITLE
AGAINST BAER

Secretive Meeting Of Managers

FORMER BOUT CANCELLED
OWING TO DIFFERENCES
REGARDING PURSE

New York, Mar. 12
Negotiations appeared to be shaping to-day for a heavyweight championship bout between Primo Carnera of Italy, present world champion, and Max Baer of California, the most outstanding challenger.

President John Kilpatrick of Madison Square Garden Corporation, Anell Hoffman, Baer's manager, and Louis Sorel, Carnera's connection, met secretly throughout the day in an effort to arrange the bout.

If the proposed encounter ever takes place, it will probably be held either in June or September.

Carnera and Baer were scheduled to have met at an earlier date, but negotiations were abandoned because of difficulties with regards to money matters.

Carnera's Third Defence

If the two are eventually brought together, it will be Carnera's third defence of the title he won from Jack Sharkey of Boston in June last year. He had twice successfully defended his laurels, first against Paulino Uzcudun of Spain, whom he overwhelmed outpointed in 15 rounds in Rome in October, and second against Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, whom he defeated on March 1 this year at Miami.

Baer became an outstanding challenger for the crown, following impressive victories over such fighters as King Levinsky, the late Ernie Schaaf, Tuffy O'Flaherty and Max Schmeling, former world champion.

It was the triumph over Schmeling that sent Baer's fighting stock soaring skyward. His victory over the former title-holder was decisive, technically knocking out the German in the 10th round of a scheduled 15-rounder in June last year. United Press.

ROSENBLUM BEATS FORTENBERRY

First Win Since He Won Title

Orlando, Fla., Mar. 12.
Maxie Rosenblum, the world's light-heavyweight champion, defeated his way to a tenth-round victory over Gordon Fortenberry of Decatur, here to fight.

He had a five-pound weight advantage, weighing 151 pounds to his opponent's 174.
Fortenberry, an Irish-born boxer, had been undefeated in 17 fights, including 15 professional bouts, and was considered one of the best light-heavyweights in the world.

Benny Bass Reveals
Fighting Spirit

DESPITE WEIGHT HANDICAP

Philadelphia, March 12.
Benny Bass, former junior light-weight champion of the world, and Cleto Locatelli, Italian battler, fought 10 rounds to a draw here to-night.

Bass gave away five pounds. He scaled at 132 pounds, against Locatelli's 137.
Despite the handicap in weight Bass tore into his foe, with the same old fighting spirit behind him. He freely exchanged blows with the Italian.

Bass won the Junior light-weight title from Tod Morgan at New York, December 20, 1932. He successfully defended it against all comers until Kid Chocolate of Cuba beat him.—United Press.

Footwork In The Swing

Golf Hint

By

ALFRED PERRY.

who has won the Australian and Surrey championships and played in the Ryder Cup match.

ONE of the most important movements in the golf swing is the action of the left heel, because it governs the correct position of the left arm and has a great deal to do with proper body movement or pivoting.

Too much restriction upon foot movement stiffens the body and makes a full swing next to impossible unless one either loosens the grip with the left hand when at the top of the swing or allows the elbow to "break," thus losing the guide back to the ball.

The left heel movement also controls timing and determines the forward movement of the body. If the heel is lifted too early or too late a bad shot will result.

My advice to beginners is to push the club head back with the left heel on the toes, and for amateurs to "sunny-side" the wrist and keep a firm grip with the left hand. The left heel, right knee, and shoulder should be the club's guide back to the ball.

CAMBRIDGE MAKE A DISCOVERY

Australian Freshman
Another Stanwood?

TRIPLE WINNER

By REVIL RUDD

Have Cambridge discovered another Stanwood?
At Fenner's in the inter-college final between Trinity and Emmanuel, J. C. Horsfall, an Australian freshman who came into residence this term, won the 100 yd. in 10.2 sec., followed this up with a 22ft. 2in. long jump, and then came out and beat the redoubtable D. L. Rathbone at the quarter mile in 50.1 sec.

Horsfall is a great find at this juncture, and after his sterling performances he becomes a potential match winner in the inter-varsity sports on March 10. Not only is his advent timely in view of Davis's strained thigh muscle, but with the long jump considered to be a "good thing" for Duncan, the Oxford Soccer captain, Horsfall's competent 22ft. alters the prospect considerably.

Incidentally I hear that E. B. Edmunds, the Shrewsbury Freshman at Cambridge, just failed to clear 23ft. recently.

Shortly before he left Australia Horsfall jumped 23½ft. Not does it surprise me, for he has all the attributes of a natural jumper. He contented himself with two jumps yesterday, and the other was only just short of 22ft.—not a bad debut in the English climate.

TRINITY'S SUCCESS

Actually Trinity had an easy victory by 77 points to 29, but each event had something special to commend it. The great duel between Rathbone and Horsfall—the last race of the day—was one of the finest quarter-mile I have seen. Although Trinity—to which Rathbone and Horsfall both belong—had already won the match, it was known that both runners were going "all out," and Fenner's buzzed with expectancy.

The race was not run in echelon, and Rathbone, on the inside, leapt into the lead, closely followed by Horsfall. They were soon on their own. Round the first bend Rathbone led, with Horsfall in watchful pursuit. Rathbone eased slightly down the back stretch, obviously nursing himself for a final burst down the home straight.

Horsfall followed suit, but launched his sprint rounding the final bend. He drew up on Rathbone, who then went all out and appeared to have his opponent checked and the race in hand.

But there was no shaking Horsfall's determination, and as Rathbone weakened almost imperceptibly 50 yards from the tape Horsfall found a new impetus which literally to Rathbone's shoulder. This slight collision momentarily checked Rathbone's momentum, but he was already broken, and it only meant that he lost the race by 3 yards instead of one.

TOPWEIGHT FOR ASCOT CUP

Newmarket, England.

The arrival of A. C. Bestwick in England with his horse Mate and the champion Cahirleen, owned by his sister, Mrs. Robert W. McKim, was greeted by sportsmen and sporting writers as an event of importance in the racing world.

Much has been written here about Mate and his success in the United States, and the racing world is eagerly anticipating his appearance at Ascot for the Gold Cup.

UNDER-CANVASSED
ANKER YACHTS

INCREASED SAIL PLAN MAY BE USED IN SINGAPORE

PROTEST REVEALS INTERESTING
POINT IN RULES

(BY CAPTAIN CUTLER)

OUR Anker yachts, speedy as they are in a good breeze, are just a little bit under-canvased for very light weather. A Singapore yachtsman owner of one of these boats has written to the designer Mr. Johann Anker to find out what can be done about it, and has accordingly received a design for an increased sail plan.

From 22 square metres of sail the total area has been increased to 24 square metres. The increase is obtained by giving the main sail more hoist by 1½ feet, and by raising the hoist of the jib no less than 3 feet. The length of the main boom remains the same; but the length of the foot of the jib is increased by 1 foot.

This design allows for the employment of a Genoa jib of generous size, such as is carried by all the most modern racing yachts when reaching. The clew of this large jib overlaps the mainsail for more than half the distance along the mainboom.

Two Sets Of Spreaders

The only snag in this rearrangement of rig is that in order to give room for the Genoa foresail it becomes necessary to carry two sets of spreaders with more complicated rigging in place of the previous very simple arrangement of one set of spreaders only.

As most yachtsmen here are well satisfied with their boats, and as our class is a one-design class in which any alteration is prohibited except by wholesale alteration of the rules, I do not think that a revision of the present 22 square metre rules will be called for, in spite of the undoubted superiority of the 24 square metre sail plan in light weather.

Interesting Protest Case

AN interesting point was raised the other day after a protest case, in which no collision occurred owing to the helmsman of the yacht claiming right of way being determined to act on that very important unwritten rule of racing which says "never cause a foul (or collision), but enter a protest when in your opinion a rule is seriously infringed."

There was some conflict of evidence in this case, which boiled down to the helmsman claiming right of way, insisting that a sharp luff on his part would have caused a collision. The other helmsman equally emphatically insisted that, although keeping close to his opponent for tactical purposes it would have been quite possible to keep clear if necessary—the yacht were side by side proceeding in the same direction.

No Foul Declared

Sailing Committees have a hard task to resolve such claims. Their guide in such cases can only be the written rules of the Yacht Racing Association. Although these rules state in a footnote to Rule 30 that a yacht may be disqualified on a protest, whether a collision result or not, it becomes almost impossible in certain border-line cases to decide whether a yacht should be disqualified if no collision occurred, and the helmsman claims that he could and did in fact keep clear.

The local Committee eventually decided that as foul occurred, and nobody was disqualified.

One writer commenting on Bestwick's commendable action in sending his horse to compete against the Derby winner, Hyperion, says: "I can only hope that both are well, and will be opposed each other in the Derby." The Italian horse, on the day of the race, was a great success.

The following point was then raised by the helmsman claiming right of way.

If with right of way one did not want to cause a collision, however slight, could a technical "foul" be scored if one of the crew were to put out a hand and touch the other yacht?

Incident 40 Years Ago

There is no exact precedent for this case, yet we can get a good line on it from a case which occurred nearly 40 years ago.

In 1895, when Britannia and Alisa were racing on the Clyde, one of the crew of the mark-boat put out his hand and touched the bowsprit shrouds of Alisa as she went round—not with a view to shoving her off, but merely through an idle fancy.

On a protest, claiming that Alisa had thereby fouled the mark-boat, the Y.R.A. decided that the man on the mark boat having declared that he was not led to touch Alisa from fear of collision, and that Alisa would otherwise have gone clear, did not disqualify Alisa.

I deduce rightly or wrongly from the above that if one of the crew of a yacht having right of way were to put out his hand and touch the other yacht, not with a view to shoving her off, the other yacht could not be disqualified.

Carnation Quality

is the watchword in every department of the Carnation organisation. Wherever there is a carnation condenser you will find the same insistent demand for quality—quality in the equipment of the condensery—quality in the housing and care of the cows—quality in the milk as it comes from the farm—and quality in the method of handling. It is the constant striving to maintain this high standard which has made Carnation Milk known the world over.

Carnation is just pure fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization.

Your grocer sells Carnation Milk.

Peace Or War

The last war we were told was a war to end all war—a noble sentiment, the genuine expression of the world at the time. The misery and cruelty and insane stupidity of war had been brought home to all the people on the globe. Over large sections of the earth there was scarce a single nation but was involved in the great catastrophe; scarce a family that did not mourn the loss of kith and kin. Even women were entangled in the web and in the neighbourhood of the fighting zones non-combatants suffered as terribly as the fighting forces. Prosperity was destroyed and wealth that represented the effort of many years of arduous toil was as though it had never been. Morally and physically the world received a shock that paralyzed it. Is it any wonder that people hoped and prayed for the abolition of war? Efforts were made to give tangible form to the pious hope—to create a lasting peace. The League of Nations was born; Locarno Pacts and Kellogg Pacts were entered into by governments on behalf of their people. Great minds in many countries were devoting all their energies to the cause of peace to the creation of means whereby outstanding and future disputes could be settled by mutual agreement. The end was clearly visualised but were the means of attaining that end as clearly perceived? It was plainly seen that the fundamental causes of war are economic. The economic rehabilitation of the world was a plain necessity. How was this to be accomplished? Agreement was reached on the need for international action but ended there. There was no open decision. What is the result? After fifteen years of economic and moral paralysis such as this world has rarely known we are no better off. North, South, East, and West nations are still at loggerheads. All peoples are anticipating the war which will be a continuation of the last war.

led by the nose, it matters little. There is much talk of disarmament. Is disarmament practical politics? Not so long as the manufacture of arms and munitions is left to private enterprise. Now as always wealth concentrates power and the manufacturers of the materials of war are immensely wealthy. The malaise lies deeper. It is not to be cured by disarmament, by the management of currency, or such palliatives. There are few countries where a man may speak his mind and retain his freedom. The press is muzzled; broadcasting is a government preserve and propaganda replaces education in the schools. What hope is there for peace in a world like that? The mysteries of nature, animate and inanimate, are being cleared up through the efforts of our men of science but knowledge is being withheld from those whom it most concerns. One of the surest approaches to world peace is through control of population. Nature's way of controlling population, is by famine, pestilence and war. We are attempting the impossible if we try to dam up these outlets and exercise no control over the increase of population. It is only within the last century or so that population has increased to such proportions, and this is almost wholly due to the efforts of men of science in diminishing famine and disease through irrigation, vaccination, inoculation and good sanitation. War is now practically the only way left to relieve the pressure of over population. Our men of science are showing the way out of this impasse but passion and prejudice, tradition and superstition, national pride and blind perverted conservatism stand in the way. The highly industrialised and superlatively fertile regions of the earth are over populated. The possibilities of emigration are severely limited. What more natural than that the inhabitants of these regions should force the doors that are shut against them? Does this not explain France's fear of her immediate neighbours and the war clouds in the Far East? There is no need for these corners of the world to be over populated. They would not be if the information already available to the few were made available to all. Unless we curb population all our efforts to abolish war will be of no avail. War will come and with it will come the collapse and the chaos of the world.

HERE, THERE, EVERYWHEREThe Death Dive

The test pilots to British aircraft constructors are the men who take the real risks in flying. They are picked men and command high salaries.

Mr. F. B. Tomkins, whose machine lost a wing in mid-air recently, was putting it into what American film producers call a "death dive" or a "hell dive."

Its technical name is a "terminal velocity dive."

In this manoeuvre the pilot climbs to a height of over 5,000 feet. Then, with the engine full out, he puts the machine into the steepest dive it will stand.

Normally an aircraft is built to withstand stresses up to about seven times the amount it is likely to meet in normal flying.

Dimitroff As A Hero

If Dimitroff, the acquitted Reichstag fire prisoner who is now incarcerated in a German gaol is to be allowed to go to Russia, he will receive a great reception in Moscow.

When Litvinoff was on his way back from the United States, with President Roosevelt's recognition in his pocket, some of the Bolsheviks proposed to hold a demonstration in his honour.

But Stalin said: "He has done well. We shall congratulate him. But he is one of us. Let us, therefore, have no noise. If Dimitroff comes, then we can make a noise."

Although the Bulgarian Government do not wish to have him back, Dimitroff is almost a national hero in his own country. Even anti-Communists feel that he has but Bulgaria on the map.

AIR ARMAMENTS MUST COME FIRSTBRITAIN IS NEGLECTING DEFENCE PREMIUM*POSITION WITHOUT PRECEDENT

(By Viscount Rothermere.)

London. To stint insurance is universally admitted to be folly. Even in the case of a bankrupt it is the invariable practice for the trustee to insure his property against every foreseeable risk. Dare we, in our national affairs, neglect a precaution regarded as so imperative in commercial and private life? The safety of these islands and the security of their seaborne supplies are the primary and elemental needs of the British nation.

No Government since British Governments began has betrayed them. Our territory has always been free from invasion and our trade from interruption. Bad times and good alike, we have paid the full premium, and the protection has never failed. We are not paying the full premium to-day.

The country does not realise the risk it is running because the danger is a new one of which it, as yet, has had no experience. The few relatively trifling air-raids of the Great War were as far behind the present-day possibilities of aerial invasion as the "magic lantern" of our childhood was behind the modern sound-film.

Large-scale, long-distance bombing is a new development of which the world's first terrible experience still lies ahead. But it is already certain that the next war will open with mass-attacks from the air upon the most densely populated portions of an adversary's territory.

To that danger Britain is more exposed than any country; against it she has taken fewer precautions than any.

Our geographical position, the climatic conditions of these islands, and the concentration of the greater part of their wealth and population in their most advanced and exposed corner are facts that place us at the mercy of any ruthless Continental Government with a well-equipped air force.

Our present position is without precedent in history. No great nation was ever so defenceless. An enemy country within a few hours of the declaration of war, and without the slightest risk, could deal us such a shattering blow by way of the unimpeded air that crushing defeat would be imposed upon us without even the possibility of resistance.

Aerial Blockade Seen. Or, if it spread us that supreme disaster, its aircraft could starve us to submission. Fifty thousand tons of imported food are landed each day at our ports by merchant ships that approach them through narrow and congested waters. Over these the long range of the modern aeroplane would make it possible to maintain a ceaseless patrol.

One hundred and fifty slow-moving German submarines, peering for their prey through the prism of a periscope, reduced us to a most precarious position in 1917; yet for one ship that a submarine creeping beneath the surface could sight and sink, the aeroplane circling high above it would account for ten.

The economies we have effected by depriving the country of proper aerial defence are made at the peril of our very lives.

In spending £109,000,000 a year on national security and only 17½ millions of them on protection against this paramount danger of the air, we act like a man who fits steel shutters to all his windows and then leaves his front-door open. Two pounds ten a head for every man, woman and child in this country is the cost of our defensive preparations, but the proportion of which this "if" stands between the three Services is governed by the pressure of the present situation. The Royal Air Force, the backbone of our defence, is the only one that has not been reduced to a skeleton. The Army will be reduced to a skeleton, the Navy will be reduced to a skeleton, the Royal Air Force will be reduced to a skeleton.

Whether by reduction of our naval and military expenditure or by increased allocations to the Royal Air Force, Britain must be given greatly increased protection from air attack. The physical safety of the subject is the first concern of the State.

Neglect of proper defence against this new and deadly danger of the air makes all other national expenditure futile. We are throwing away the £50,000,000 we annually spend on the education of our children if we leave them unprotected against massacre. In voting £14,000,000 a year for housing we may be only providing more targets for enemy bombs.

Further delay may be fatal. We have drifted far beyond that "edge of risk" to which a Government blinded by its own self-esteem almost boasts that it has brought us. There must be a very substantial increase in the Air Estimates for the new financial year which starts two months hence.

Use For Budget Surplus

Part of this can obviously be obtained by saving money on the other two Services which the progress of science has reduced to subordinate and subsidiary functions in the matter of national defence. But no economies will redeem the systematic neglect of our air armaments ever since the war. The rapid development of the Royal Air Force to the minimum strength required for the safety of Great Britain demands substantially increased expenditure.

The country is fortunate enough to be in a position to find the necessary money without adding to its burden of taxation. There is every reason to hope that the present financial year will close with a surplus of £40,000,000 or £50,000,000 in the hands of the Chancellor of the Exchange. That surplus should be earmarked in its entirety for the imperative needs of aerial defence.

There are many classes in the country who can make out a good claim to benefit by it. The teachers, soldiers, sailors, and Civil Servants whose pay has been reduced; the income-tax payer whose impositions have been augmented; all deserve satisfaction as soon as it can possibly be given them.

But it would be a direct injury to their own interests to yield to those claims now.

The peril of remaining defenceless in a Europe that is manifestly preparing for war would be too high a price at which to buy the benefit of a few more pounds of personal income.

BOY'S LIFE SAVED BY TURKEY.Fought And Ate 3-Foot Yellow Cobra.

Worcester (Cape Province). On a farm in the Karoo there is a turkey that will definitely not trace somebody's festive board this season. The bird fought and ate a yellow cobra, 3 feet long. In doing so saved the little son of its master. Mr. Johan Pienaar, of "Weltevreden," Beaufort West, was having an after-dinner nap when the screams of his coloured maid aroused him. Rushing outside he saw a turkey-hen about to swallow the snake whole. The maid told him that his little boy was playing in the shade when he began to cry. The turkey was sitting on a nest of eggs and suddenly the maid saw it get off the nest, for a yellow cobra, standing with its head away from the hen, had been eating it. The hen was a turkey-hen, and the snake was a yellow cobra. The turkey-hen was a turkey-hen, and the snake was a yellow cobra. The turkey-hen was a turkey-hen, and the snake was a yellow cobra.

"INQUISITION" OF 20TH CENTURY

Political Prisoners Tortured.

CHARGES IN BRAZIL

Sao Paulo (Brazil). Police methods in Sao Paulo are declared to constitute a "Twentieth-Century Inquisition." In a petition addressed to the Corregidor Judge by 44 leading lawyers. The petition says that:— "In the Cabinet of Investigations and other filthy dungeons of S. Paulo innumerable political prisoners are detained, and are constantly flogged and tortured to make them confess to supposed participation in 'terrorist plans.' "In infected cubicles, of ridiculous dimensions, scores of prisoners are crowded, political and criminal, under conditions that defy the most fertile imagination in inventing horrors.

Absolute Isolation. "But what is even worse is the treatment inflicted on the prisoners. They are maintained in absolute isolation from the outside world, even their lawyer and their families not being allowed to see them. They are constantly flogged and tortured—that is when they are not summarily condemned to hard labour.

"The Police Department of Social Order of S. Paulo is a faithful reproduction, in the twentieth century, of the notorious Tribunal of the Holy Inquisition—this in S. Paulo which prides itself on being a cultured and civilised State."

The judge has agreed to an inquiry into police methods in the state.—Reuter.

LUXURY LINER ARRIVES

Mr. William Duncan, a well-known figure in the Canadian lumber industry, Miss M. K. Locke, the famous American authoress, and Dr. M. E. Obeneyer, of Chicago, who is travelling round the world to study skin diseases, are also on the world tour.

FINE WEATHER ON TRIP

Since leaving New York in January the tourists have experienced very pleasant weather conditions, and all the passengers have fully enjoyed their cruise.

There are about thirty French tourists aboard, and about thirty Canadian, the rest of the passengers being either British or American in about equal proportions.

Built In 1931.

The Empress of Britain, the Commodore Ship of the Canadian Pacific Line, was built on the Clyde in 1931, under the sponsorship of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and is one of the few vessels which have crossed the Atlantic in less than five days. She is the largest liner which has visited Hong Kong, being 768 feet long, 97 feet broad, and a gross register of 42,500 tons. This is the third season in succession that the "Britain" has visited Hong Kong on her round the world cruises, and it will be remembered that Mr. G. Bernard Shaw was among her passengers on the last visit.

Magnificent Ship.

The huge vessel is the last word in luxury liners. She has more cubic feet of space per passenger than any other ship afloat; her eleven lounges and dining rooms are designed by world-famous artists; she has a huge stage; an up-to-date talkie apparatus; two swimming pools; and a Turkish bath. Two whole decks are devoted to sports, on which is a full-sized tennis court and a regulation squash rackets court.

The Itinerary.

In the course of her cruise, the Empress of Britain has called at Madeira, Gibraltar, Algeria, Monaco, France, Italy, Greece, Palestine, Egypt, India, Ceylon, Prince of Wales Island, Straits Settlements, Malaya, Siam, Java, Bali, Sulu, and Manila, and before she reaches New York on May 14th she will have called at North China Ports, Japan, Hawaii, San Francisco, Central America, and Cuba. Many of the ship's passengers have visited Hong Kong before, among them being the Commodore of the C.P.R. Fleet, Captain R. G. Latta, and Commander W. G. Peak.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE WATER QUESTION.

(To the Editor, "China Mail.")

Sir,—Having read the comments which have appeared in your paper, many of us are beginning to realise that the facts of the whole water question sorely need placing before the public.

Landlords, as a class, have always been between the devil and the deep sea. On the one hand, most Governments regard them as an easy means of raising revenue, and on the other, few tenants let an opportunity pass without making life unpleasant for them.

I am not attempting to justify all landlords, but whenever any problem connected with housing comes up for consideration, there is lurking in the background a feeling that the landlord is to blame.

Take this water question. The Government has decided that all water must be paid for. It is the public, landlords, and tenants alike, who use water, and are consequently expected to pay for it. In practice, very few tenants do pay for the water they use, while it is left to the landlord to settle as best he can the demands of Government.

The average landlord is weary of this squabble over excess water charges. He is not trying to sell water; it is the Government which is doing that. He does not use the water supplied to his tenants, it is his tenants who are doing that. Yet he is dragged into this water-selling business, because the Government insists on making him responsible for the payment of water accounts.

Why should it be made impossible for tenants to apply for their own meters in the same way as they apply for their gas meters or electric meters, or to obtain water in the same way as they obtain a postage stamp or any other commodity by paying for it themselves? Why should landlords be asked to guarantee what their tenants use, over whose thrift or liberality, they have no control?

Therein lies the injustice, an injustice, if a mild one, landlords might bear, rather than expend energy on protests; but when the amount paid for excess water comes to 20 per cent. of the rent received, which, together with the amount for rent of meter, rates and Crown rent, not allowing for vacancies and repairs, total 40 per cent. of income, the matter takes on a grimness, for which they have not been prepared.

DUELLING POPULAR IN GERMANY

Now Declared Legal By Nazis.

ENTHUSIASTIC STUDENTS

Cologne. German students are once more taking up duelling enthusiastically now that it has been declared legal by Nazis.

Battle-scarred youths may be seen in the streets of every German town, proudly exhibiting the symbols of valour. Many of them will carry their scars for the rest of their lives.

There are two sorts of duelling—the Meneur and the Contrahage.

Every student is compelled, as a test of manliness, to fight a certain number of the former type for which rapiers or fine swords with sharp edges are used.

On the other hand the Contrahage is intended only for the settlement of disputes—either between individual students or clubs. Such duels are fought with swords.

At a certain University in a Rhineland town duelling takes place every Friday afternoon in a dance hall, hired for the purpose.

Draped Windows.

The windows are hung with thick curtains to prevent unauthorised persons looking in. The privilege of witnessing these duels is closely guarded, and it is difficult for an "outsider" to obtain admission.

A powerful arc lamp hangs over the ring in the centre of the hall, the rest of which is in darkness. Plaster, forceps, scissors, antiseptics and bandages are kept ready in a corner of the ring.

The duellists are heavily bandaged, and their eyes are covered with special glasses.

Each duellist has a second and a "testant," the referee being drawn from an independent source.

Hour after hour the fights continue. The room begins to smell strongly of antiseptics. In the corners sit the previous contestants, their faces covered with blood. If any of them flinches under the doctor's hands the "house" laughs him out.

After each bout attendants scatter sawdust to absorb the blood on the floor.—Reuter.

Personal Pars.

Dr. Thomas Walter Ware resumed duty as Second Port Health Officer and Inspector of Emigrants on March 12.

Dr. John Macfarlane Gray resumed duty as Acting Medical Officer of Health on March 12.

Dr. John Beveridge Mackie and Mr. James Ivor Barnes have been appointed Deputy Registrars of Births and Deaths.

Today's Short Story.

THE 13th FLAW

By W. J. Makin.

"GOOD hunting, my lad," commented the Chief of the Criminal Records Office. He leaned back in his chair in the top, well-lighted room at Scotland Yard. "Looks like we've bagged a long lost murderer, eh?"

His red-haired assistant, Dan Finch, flushed with pleasure and spread the finger-print records before Chief-Inspector Shaw.

"You'll notice, sir, that the ridge characteristics are the same, the exact papillary spaces, and the whorls curved as before. I thought I recognised 'em."

"Nothing like a good memory, my lad," nodded the Chief. He adjusted a pair of prim pince-nez and, with a characteristic gesture, took up a magnifying glass and his steel pointers.

"Yes, they're the same," he agreed. "I'll stake the reputation of the department on it. What's the history?"

Dan Finch was apt to gabble in his excitement.

"I got the first set from our files, sir. They're the prints found in the Beaconsfield shop murder case two years ago."

"I remember," nodded Chief-Inspector Shaw. "An antique shop, wasn't it? An old man found murdered, bashed on the head behind the counter and the till robbed. And now I think of it," he went on, excitement flushing his withered face, "there were several people who saw the murderer before and after the crime."

Dan Finch nodded his red head. "That's right, sir. The wife of the shopkeeper saw the fellow enter by the front door. He began to bargain with her husband. She left to go on some errand. When she returned it was to find her husband murdered and the till robbed. But at least two neighbours saw the murderer leave, though they never guessed what had taken place almost before their eyes. Broad daylight, too."

"And from that moment the local police lost the trail," murmured the Chief.

"Yes, sir. A fairly complete description was issued. Sent to 'all stations' and published in the 'Police Gazette.' Even the B.B.C. broadcast it. But they never found him."

"And now we've got him," grunted the Chief with pleasure. "Where d'you get the second lot of prints from, my lad?"

"They came this morning, sir, from Norwich gaol."

"What's he in for?"

"Shop breaking. Found on the premises. Sentenced to six months."

MONDAY'S STORY

Monday's story will be Judith, by Hjalmar Bergman.

"Umph! Looks like a regular case of M.O."

Modus operandi was a favourite theme with Chief-Inspector Shaw of the Criminal Records Office. It justified the successful existence of his department. And he had every reason to be proud.

He brought a zest and enthusiasm to the hunt for murderers and regular criminals who were detailed with finger-prints and body marks among his half a million card index collection. A gleam would come to the grey eyes behind the pince-nez as he snapped a card forth into the light.

"What's the fellow's name, anyhow," he purred, bending over the finger-print cards again.

"Calls himself Joseph Jones, sir." "Well, that's a false name, anyhow. Who ever heard of a criminal sticking to a name like Joe Jones? Better get that widow and the two neighbours down from Beaconsfield, and we'll parade the fellow."

"In London, sir?"

"Yes. Ask Pentonville to arrange his transfer. And get a decent parade—not a collection of old lags. There ought to be no difficulty about identifying him. Three witnesses can't go wrong. In any case, here's the evidence to hang him—the same finger-prints."

Dan Finch stammered. "Don't forget, sir, that there's always the possibility...." He hesitated.

"I know what you're going to say," nodded the Chief. "That it might be another of those damned queer similarities in finger-prints that we've had hung in our faces lately."

"We've had twelve of 'em, sir, within the past year."

"And if this is the thirteenth you'll begin to think that finger-print evidence is a fraud, eh? Come on, you might as well admit it, my lad," added Chief-Inspector Shaw, bitterly. "You're not alone in your belief. Even a magistrate lectured one of our men the other day on the folly of believing too much in finger-print identification. And when magistrates begin to doubt—"

"I must say it's queer, sir," ventured Dan Finch. "We've had those twelve cases all in one year of criminals who, when arrested, show the same finger-prints as habituals in our files. And yet, the police photographs and the body marks don't agree with our files. The camera doesn't lie, sir. At least, not a police camera. And you're always said—"

"And I shall say it again," broke in the Chief. "No two finger-prints are alike. I know, my lad, that you're thinking me an old fool, and that the modern criminal with the help of science is proving me so. But I'm prepared to argue this point on my death-bed—and with a magistrate, too."

"But, sir," ventured Dan Finch, "the fact now almost as red as the rose is that I don't think you're an old fool."

"I am snapped," said the Chief. "I would be able to solve the mystery of those twelve cases, if only I had that fellow from Beaconsfield."

Quebec Dog Derby Thrills

Names to conjure with in the dog sled derby world are now on the lists of drivers who will contend for the premier honors of the Quebec Dog Sled Derby to be staged in the Ancient Capital, February 23rd, 24th, and 25th. Emilie St. Godard, mighty musher from Le Pas, Man., will again match dogs, stamina and wits against his great rival Leonard Seppala, the Alaskan whose feats on the trails are known the world over. St. Godard and Seppala, who are now training at Lacada, N. H., will both meet strenuous competition from such famous mushers as Jack DeFalco, of Ottawa, Fred Wheeler, of St. Jovite, Que., and Raymond Rital, of Orient, Ont. It is expected that the total entries will run well over 30 teams.

The 120 mile classic is famous the world over, and followers of the great hearted dogs and gallant drivers are arranging to make their headquarters at the Canadian Pacific Railway's Chateau Frontenac, where special music, dancing and lighthearted gaiety will feature each evening during Dog Sled Derby Week. Winter sport enthusiasts from European, United States and Canadian centers are this year more than ever before making Quebec their winter playground. Ski-ing, tobogganing, curling and skating are among the popular activities under the direction of Jack Strathdee winter sports director at the Chateau Frontenac.

"Go to Dartmoor if you like, but try to forget finger-prints for a time."

It was exactly three weeks later that red-haired Dan Finch, reckless in expense, rode down Wimpole-street in a taxi. The driver looked an eye at a number and slurred his car to a standstill.

"Ere you are, guv'nor." Dan Finch, his coat collar turned up and a hat well over his eyes, paid off the taxi, mounted the steps, examined a brass-plate with some care, and selected a bell to ring. The heavy polished door swung open at the touch of a uniformed nurse.

"Dr. Tonway?" asked Finch. "You have an appointment?" queried the nurse.

"At eleven-thirty. My name is Thompson." He sidled into the house quickly, and removed his hat. The nurse looked at his red hair and sniffed. "Please take a seat. I'll let you know when the doctor is ready to see you," she condescended. Precisely at eleven-thirty she reappeared. "The doctor will see you now. Please come this way."

He was ushered through a doorway into a room lighted in modern fashion. A couch for examining patients were against one wall. Glass cabinets containing steel instruments flanked another wall. A desk, and rising to come towards him across the rich, soft carpet, Doctor Tonway. Keen, angular face with searching eyes.

"You telephoned me, rather urgently, Mr. Thompson." "Yes, sir," babbled Finch. "Fact is, doctor, it is urgent."

"What is it?" "You're a face surgeon, aren't you?"

Doctor Tonway smiled. "That is so."

"I... er... want to change myself."

The doctor's smile broadened. "If you want me to change the colour of your hair," he gently suggested, "I can only recommend a pennyworth of dye."

"No, I can't give my hair all right," grinned Finch in turn. "But I want the shape of my nose altered, and maybe my ears."

The doctor's smile disappeared. "There doesn't appear anything particularly wrong with your nose," he remarked. "And at a first glance I should say that your ears are excellently shaped."

Dan Finch took the plunge. "I said my name was Thompson, didn't I?" he said, looking at the doctor.

"No? Well, you probably heard of the £20,000 jewel robbery at the Babylon Hotel yesterday."

"I think I saw something of it in the newspapers."

"Well, I did it. Mike Thompson." The doctor regarded him steadily. "I think you're a fool, Thompson," he said, quietly. "Why not try boasting about it at a police-station?"

"Aw, come off it!" growled Dan Finch. "Let me tell you something. I was in the Scrubs until a week ago."

"You certainly see life." "And a feller there told me if I wanted a safe hiding-place and a new face, so that my own mother wouldn't recognise me, I was to come to you and—"

"What on earth are you talking about?" "—And the dicks have got my finger-prints and a dozen choice photos taken profile and full face. I daren't walk about the streets. And me, with ten thousand pounds' worth of sparklers on me."

"I thought you said twenty thousand pounds."

"Aw, that's the sum the old dowager queen bequeathed to the new paper fellers. I can get ten thousand for 'em."

There was a short silence. The doctor walked to the wall and flicked on another light. Then he turned and regarded the red-haired figure.

"A facial operation is a very expensive business, Mr. Thompson."

"Well, I don't expect you to do it for nothing," said Dan Finch, cheerfully.

"There's the cost of staying in my cottage hospital in Kent."

"In your case," continued the doctor, regarding Finch thoughtfully, "the operation and the... necessary convalescence will take some six weeks."

"The longer the better."

"And the price will be exactly two thousand guineas."

"Two thousand—Ere, I say, doc."

"Two thousand guineas," repeated the doctor, firmly.

"Two thousand guineas," murmured the stunned Dan Finch. "And for what?"

A completely new face, smiled the doctor. "To use your own words, one which your own mother wouldn't recognise. A new face to your present predicament. Mr. Thompson, would surely be worth two thousand guineas."

"It would," nodded Dan Finch. He had moved towards the door as he spoke, and with a sudden gasp he turned back. "Aw, that's all right, doc. I'll take it."

NATIVE BOY SAVES EXPRESS TRAIN

Gives Warning At Risk Of Death.

DRAMA IN TANGIER

The courage of a native boy has saved the Casablanca-Tanger express from a terrible disaster.

Floods had undermined the track, leaving the rails suspended in the air without any solid support.

A native boy, who had observed the damage, saw the express approaching and ran along the line to stop it.

The driver, accustomed to seeing natives on the line, did not slacken speed and whistled at the boy to get out of the way.

But the lad stood his ground, despite the shouts and threats of the driver, until the train came to a stop amid a shrieking of brakes within a few feet of him.

The furious driver jumped down from the cab determined to give the boy a good thrashing, but his anger turned to joy and gratitude when he discovered the peril which he had so narrowly avoided.

Instead of a thrashing, the boy has received a reward of 2,000 francs (about £24 at present rates) from the railway company.—Reuter.

Detectives nodded to the red-haired youth. "We heard everything."

He advanced towards the doctor. "Dr. Tonway, I hold a warrant for your arrest, and it is my duty to inform you that—"

The gentleman of Wimpole-street cursed heavily.

"So we proved old Galton right after all," purred Chief-Inspector Shaw, leaning back in his chair.

"Yes, sir," nodded Dan Finch. "It was easy, of course, once I got that fellow talking at Wormwood Scrubs. Apparently the doctor started this because he'd lost a small fortune in the slump on the Stock Exchange. Once he'd begun it wasn't easy to stop. Mr. Jones was one of his first clients. He kept a ledger account with photographs before and after, down at his cottage hospital in Kent."

"He knew how to make a damned good nose," admitted the Chief-Inspector, rubbing his own thoughtfully.

"And—thank you, my lad, for the trouble you've taken in this case."

"Thank you, sir."

Flushed with pleasure, Dan Finch had turned to go.

And by the way, my lad, what you've done with that deuced nose—"

"I saw your reading lamp, and I thought I'd better look at it. It was a damned good nose, wasn't it?"

"Of course it was, the Chief-Inspector said so. And now I'll be going. Good-bye, my lad."

"Good-bye, sir."

Corporation Authorised To Make Loans.

R.F.C. TO LEND TO EXPORTERS.

Washington, To-day.
With a view to stimulating business recovery by the relaxation of credit, Mr. Jesse Jones, Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has submitted to the Senate Banking Committee, a draft Bill authorising the Corporation to lend direct to industrial commercial concerns for a period up to five years and also to participate or assume responsibility up to 75 per cent. of bank loans for industrial and commercial purposes.

With a view to encouraging foreign trade, the R.F.C. will be empowered to lend exporters either directly or by the system of Government-owned export banks.—Reuter.

Silver Move Brings New Market Interest.

INDUSTRIALS IMPROVE

New York, To-day.

The commodity index was down .11 to 54.12. Business was average, 1,170,000 shares being traded.

While Thursday's Washington news dampened bullish silver sentiment, interest was manifested in yesterday's report that two silver Bills would be brought up on Monday to be voted on.

In their market report, Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company, through their local correspondents, Messrs. Asia Lanka, Ltd., state:—

"Following a day of weakness, the market showed a feeling of quiet strength, with no follow-through. Most commentators, who base their opinions on technical conditions, appear to be bearish, but the predicted liquidation fails to materialise.

CAMBRIDGE AND ENGLAND FAVOURITES

As the fixture is exceptionally popular, and the championship is in the balance, a crowd of 70,000 is anticipated.

The English fifteen have not been defeated this season, and critics favour their chances, without, however, diminishing the confidence of Scotland's supporters.

A drawn match would give England the championship, but victory is required to regain the Calcutta Cup, of which Scotland are the holders.—British Wireless Service.
